February 16, 1955

Dear June,

It seems that the flu bug is still around our school. Quite a few of the students are absent every day. Have many of you been sick?

Monday night the government class, section I, under the direction of Mrs. W. M. Morris presented a program on Americanism for the American Legion Auxiliary. Those taking part on the program were: Robert Lefters, Edna Gregory, Hugh Gurney, J. C. Hawley, Ronnie Lewis, Jerry George, Ruth Slagle, Teddy Mitchell, Shelby Thompson, Shirley Blanks, John Rothgeb, Dettie Rothgeb, Lucy Perdue, and Jane Holt.

On February seventh, Mrs. Cheatham and the Spanish classes were privileged to go to Richmond to see Jose Greco and his company of Spanish dancers. The students attending were Mary Watt Stanley, Edna Gregory, Hugh Gurney, J. C. Hawley, Doris Clapp, Carol Myers, Lewis McDearmon, Maynard Beane, Betty Mitchell, Shawn Mabley and Lucy Perdue. Two teachers from Concord, James Hall and Laura Trent, went also.

The boys' basketball team suffered an upset at Altavista Friday night, by a score of 52-42. Teddy Mitchll was high scorer, with 13 points. Tuesday night the boys made a comeback by defeating the New London team 75-66. The high scorer was Boots Carter. Teddy Mitchell and Jerry George followed with 14 points each. Appomattox goes into its final two weeks of play by having two home games this week. William Campbell will come here tonight and Pamplin Friday night. Will you be able to attend any of these games?

Tuesday was club day in our school. The F. H. A., F. F. A., Jr. Science and Dixie Music clubs met. The Dixie Music Club studied English music and sang folk songs. Shelby Thompson and Alice Ashworth each sang a solo during the meeting.

This concludes the happenings around A. H. S. for now. Be looking for more news from me next week.

'Til then,

Jane.

On Feb. 1, the house at "Scotland," the ancestral home of the Joel Watkins family, of Appomattox, burned. The plantation is now owned by Mr. E. H. Carson, but it had been in the Watkins family for at least 150 years. The home was built in 1824 by Joel Watkins, an architect, the grandfather of the Joel Watkins, Sr., of Farmville. It was an eight-room house, built of heart pine, with pine paneling chairboards around the walls. On the plantation is a natural lake around which the foundations of Indian huts were unearthed not long after the War Between the States, when the Appomattox River overflowed. There was also an Indian mound on the flats. It was thought that the Indians had a battle there, and buried the dead in the mound. Mr. Joel Watkins, Sr. moved this mound, because it was in the center of one of his best flats. Many Indian relics were found when this was opened. Mr. Watkins' nephew Watkins Kearney, assembled these relics: tomahawks, pottery, Indian arrows, etc, and sent them to the Jamestown Exposition in 1907.

It is not known how the place received the name of "Scotland," but it has been suggested that it was because of the lake.

The Joel Watkins family, of Farmville, was reared there.

PEANUT HULLS SATISFACTORY SUBSTITUTE FOR HAY

Peanut hulls seem to have a place as a satisfactory substitute for hay in the rations of both fattening and growing cattle.

Dr. C. M. Kincaid and H. R. Thomas of the VPI Agricultural Experiment Station's animal husbandry staff, reporting on two years of work at the Holland branch, say fattening rations containing 40% peanut hulls produced about the same average daily gains and carcass grades as did rations containing 40% hay, when fed to yearling heifers 126 days for the first year and 84 days the second year.

For growing cattle, rations with as much as 60% of the total feed from peanut hulls produced satisfactory gains with steer calves and yearling heifers.

The discovery that peanut hulls can be used in beef cattle rations is of significance to both the peanut producer and the cattle producer, the scientists say. It is estimated that about 6,000,000 pounds of peanut hulls are produced annually as a by-product of the peanut processing industry. Heretofore, peanut hulls were considered fit only for bedding or as a packing material.

Appomattox is a growing town.

Carver-Price School News

Hello Readers! We had a thrilling basketball game on Tuesday night, February 15 against Rosenwald High School of Waynesboro. The Carver-Price Panthers won by a score of 55-47. It was a constant exchange of point for point. In the last quarter Carver kept a lead over the opponents. High scorer for Carver was Curtis Whitted, Captain who chalked up 21 points. Curtis, Willie Lilly, Eugene Browder, Allen Watkins, and Joe L. Robinson were the beginning line-up. We regret the fact that all of these players except Joe Robinson graduate this year. All were aggressive players throughout Tuesday night's game. It was one of the most spirited games played by our team this year. This, incidentally, was a conference game. C. Barbour, of Rosenwald High scored 25 points. He was Nnmber 3 and had to be watched closely. We are very proud of our team and enjoyed this game. Let's have more like this, Coach Miller. The cheerleaders did a most commendable job, keeping our large group of spectators in the mood. A delicious dinner was served the visiting team after a dance.

We are most happy to welcome Principal R. E. Patrick back after an extended illness. We missed him during his absence.

The seventh and ninth graders played their basketball game last Thursday with the ninth graders winning. A large group of students attended. This activity was sponsored for the purpose of helping purchase a scoreboard being presented by the 4-H Club.

Tuesday afternoon an interesting movie, "A Basketball Fix," was shown. It was seen by all the classes and proved very educational. The Tenth Grade sponsored this activity.

Original Radio Scripts are being written in English II classes. They are studying a unit on Radio and T. V. programming, use of sound effects, how to incorporate novels, poems, historical events, and school news into interesting scripts. The newly purchased Public Address system, and tape recorder are being used. Mrs. H. P. James is instructor.

From a few of the beautiful, interesting textbooks up for state adoption next year, we're sure great interest in the courses will be shown.

The school bulletin boards were attractive with valentines for February 14. We can see where our "hearts" are.

The Carver Panthers play the Dunbar J. V.'s at Dunbar High School on Wednesday night, February 16. We are aagin expecting a win.

Until next week, our thought: "He who did well in war just earns the right

To begin doing well in peace."
